An estimated 4 million Syrians are in need of food assistance. In March, WFP provided such assistance to 1.9 million people across the country. Despite insecurity, logistical challenges and financial constraints, WFP has scaled up its food aid programme in Syria from 1.5 million target beneficiaries in January to 2.5 million beneficiaries by the end of April.

The boundaries and names shown and the designations used on this map do not imply official endorsement or acceptance by the United Nations.

Notes: Approximately 225,000 additional people receive food from ICRC monthly. All estimates are based on SARC reports and average family size of five.
